infections with hepatitis A virus in guinea-pigs]. After intraperitoneal inoculation of guinea-pigs with human hepatitis A virus, the animals developed the disease which is characteristic of this virus.

Transitional immune response followed by virus elimination from blood and intestinal villi was evidenced. Guinea-pigs showed no marked susceptibility to hepatitis A virus of the cell culture as judged from serial blood and intestinal mucosa tests. However, the virus was detected at the end of the 15-20 days lasting post-infection period in the lungs of guinea-pigs. The study failed to reveal immune regulation of the virus elimination from the blood and intestinal villi by the immune mechanism. The surge in the use of internet-connected drones could create a new billion dollar market for US technology companies by 2020, according to a new report by a research firm.

Although the report foresees a significant decline in the projected global market for drones, especially as the drone industry matures, it says US companies have a real chance to benefit from a combination of advances that are boosting drone use, such as smartphone apps and advanced sensors that require fast, real-time data streams. "While a couple of years ago people thought the market was going to be significantly smaller, the market has grown 30 times [since the dawn of the drone market], so there is huge demand," says 0cc13bf012
